Reviews:

“This dark garnet-colored wine offers aromas of Chambord, fennel frond and lavender. Light- weight tannins and well-integrated acidity are wrapped around black currant, purple plum, anis- ette and rose petal flavors. A pleasant chocolate note sticks around after the last sip.”

“Isaac Fernández’s Finca La Mata bottling is made from much older vines than the Rios De Tinta, as these tempranillo vines are fully sixty to eighty-five years of age! They are farmed organically, fermented with native yeasts and raised in a combination of ninety percent French and ten percent American oak casks for one year prior to bottling. The wine delivers a deep aromatic constellation of black cherries, sweet dark berries, pomegranate, dark soil tones, cigar ash a nice touch of fresh nutmeg and a sound framing of cedary new oak. On the palate the wine is deep, full- bodied and ripely tannic, with excellent depth of fruit, a good base of soil, lovely focus and balance and a long, complex and promising finish. Though this is also listed at 14.5 percent octane, it shows no signs of uncovered alcohol on the backend. This is going to be an excellent wine with a bit of bottle age and is a very, very good value! 2030-2060+”
